Q: Should I request user permission in a firebase Cloud Function? I have a nodejs application that fetches data from Firebase Database. If the user has already provided it's email id in the application, then the firebase auth token is obtained and used. The application is supposed to be used by all users and if the user doesn't authorize the application to access it's information, then the request is rejected.

Influence of long-term exercise on levels of brain-derived neurotrophic factor and neurotrophin-3 in the hippocampus of adolescent and adult rats. Neurotrophins are important factors that regulate growth, differentiation and maintenance of neurons. Brain-derived neurotrophic factor (BDNF) and neurotrophin-3 (NT-3) are closely related, and both have been suggested to be important in the etiology of depression. In this study, adult and adolescent male Wistar rats were given access to either a running wheel or a weight-bearing (WB) staircase exercise box for 1 year. The WB exercise group was given a volume of exercise that increased proportionally to body weight, while the running wheel exercise group was given a running wheel to run for 15 min a day. At the end of the experiment, levels of BDNF and NT-3 in the hippocampus were quantified using enzyme-linked immunosorbent assay (ELISA) and were compared
